Dear Sir/Madam,

Re: Post Market Review of Products Used in the Management of Diabetes

In the interests of improvements in health outcomes and cost efficiency, it is important that any proposals to alter existing funding and access arrangements allow sufficient room for the access and adoption of future diabetes treatment modalities and technologies. These may include, for example, devices that help recognise blood glucose patterns and management of them, self-regulating integrated blood glucose management systems, closed loop “artificial pancreas” and integrated remote therapeutic monitoring, which represent real advances in the monitoring and management of people with diabetes.

Yours sincerely,

Anne Trimmer
Chief Executive Officer
